New Event Space Completed at Historic Alford Manor House

A major improvement project at the historic Alford Manor House has now been completed, with a brand-new venue officially handed over to the Alford Manor House Trustees.

The £2.1million UK Government Funded project which East Lindsey District Council has delivered has seen the completion of a new event space, named The Orangery, which will serve as a versatile event space for the Manor House, providing a venue for weddings, celebrations of lives lost, conferences, celebrations, community events and private hire.

As part of the development, a new kitchen and bar area have been created within The Orangery. This will enhance the existing kitchen facilities, creating additional space within the Manor House to enhance and expand museum facilities. These improvements will enrich the visitor experience while helping to preserve and showcase the site's rich history.

The project has also delivered a new outdoor storage and workshop facility, enabling the Rural Life Museum to display its collection of machinery and artefacts. This will allow more items from the collection to be displayed for visitors to enjoy.

Planning application was submitted in July 2024 and approved in October 2024. Following a competitive tender process, Probus Construction was appointed in June 2025, with construction work commencing in August 2025.

Alford Manor House is a Grade II* listed building and one of Lincolnshire's most significant historic landmarks. In undertaking this project, great care has been taken to respect and preserve the heritage of the site. Probus Construction and project team to ensure the historic character of the building was maintained, with original materials retained and reused wherever possible.

The completion of The Orangery marks an important milestone for Alford Manor House, securing its future as a premier visitor destination while creating new opportunities for events, exhibitions and income generation to support the preservation of the site.

Horncastle to be part of Age-Friendly pilot project with launch of business award scheme

A pilot project aims to establish Horncastle as East Lindsey's first Age-Friendly town, with a new business range of community initiatives designed to make the town even more accessible for older residents.

East Lindsey District Council and Horncastle Town Council are working in partnership on the pilot project.

East Lindsey has been recognised as an Age-Friendly Community since 2019, when the district council joined Age Friendly Communities. This commitment helps ensure that older residents can lead healthy, active lives, participate in local activities and continue contributing to their communities for as long as possible.

Following an assessment of six locations across the district, Horncastle was identified by the council as the pilot scheme due to its existing age-friendly qualities.

The project aims to build on these strengths and support Horncastle Town Council in gaining recognition as an Age-Friendly Community in its own right. Working together, the two councils will explore ways to make the town even more accessible for older residents.

As part of the pilot, East Lindsey District Council's Healthy Communities and Place teams are developing a Business Award Scheme for local businesses, launching this autumn.

The scheme will encourage organisations to adopt age-friendly practices and sign up to the Age-Friendly Business Framework. Businesses will be able to work towards recognition using the Centre for Ageing Better's Age-Friendly Business Framework.

The Framework is based on five key principles:

- Your People - Age-inclusive employment practices, training and awareness, challenging age-related stereotypes and creating a positive and supportive workplace culture.
- Your Premises - Accessible layouts and entrances, appropriate furniture and facilities, consideration of other sensory factors, health and safety and easy and welcoming customer interactions.
- Your Communications - Easy-to-find information, clear language and readable formats, effective representation of older people, accessible communication channels.
- Your Offer - Providing customer choice, age-friendly products and services, listening to feedback and encouraging innovation, meeting the needs of a diverse customer base.
- Your Place in the Community - Understanding local community needs, encouraging social connections and collaboration, community engagement and support.

Alongside the business award scheme, a number of other initiatives working with the town council, local businesses and residents could be introduced to help make Horncastle more age-friendly.

These could be anything from developing chatty cafés to reduce loneliness and encourage social connections, to the availability of seating in public spaces and within businesses and supporting residents to become Agein ambassadors, helping to raise awareness and advocate for age-friendly approaches among family, friends and the wider community.

Monthly age-friendly drop-ins will also be taking place at Horncastle Library, starting on Thursday 10 September. The October session will be on Thursday 8 October from 10am-12noon.

The drop ins are an opportunity for residents and business representatives to share their views and ask for advice.

East Lindsey District Council launches new programme to support businesses with energy costs

East Lindsey District Council is launching a new programme that provides expert advice and energy audit area after identifying a need for guidance and support.

Funded by the East Lindsey Investment Fund (ELIF), the Energy Smart East Lindsey programme aims to deliver tailored recommendations based on the specific challenges and opportunities within businesses.

Following discussions with businesses, the Council has become acutely aware of the difficulties they face climate, particularly around the cost of utilities such as gas and electricity.

Having identified the issue and the need for support, the Council made the move to invest its own money to deliver real results for businesses through in-depth audits and expert advice.

Larger businesses with energy bills costing more than £50,000 per year, will be able to access part funded support and audits from Energy Oasis.

For smaller businesses, fully funded resource efficiency audits are available from N4 Energy Solutions.

This support will help business owners to identify practical ways to improve efficiency, reduce unnecessary decisions about future improvements.

Alongside the offer of audits, ELIF funding has also made it possible for Advice4Growth to continue one well as to deliver a series of networking events for businesses across the district which will begin in October.

The events have been designed to explore practical approaches to improving efficiency and will be a chance to learn from industry specialists and share experiences with others, while also being able to discover what works for them.

Greater Lincolnshire Unites Behind £324,000 Investment to Create the Next Generation of Creative Talent

Arts Council England and local partners back ambitious county-wide collaboration to grow skills, jobs and opportunities.

An unprecedented partnership of councils, education providers and the creative sector has come together to transform creative careers across Greater Lincolnshire, creating new jobs and apprenticeships.

Lincoln Arts Centre and Barbican Creative Hub, based at the University of Lincoln, have been awarded a £324,000 investment from the University of Lincoln, alongside a combined £50,000 from Lincolnshire County Council, North Kesteven District Council, South & East Lincolnshire Councils Partnership, and West Lincolnshire Council, marking one of the most ambitious collaborations for the county's creative industries to date.

Running from 2026 to 2029, the three-year programme will strengthen Greater Lincolnshire's creative economy by creating new jobs, skills and pathways into employment. It will:

- Establish five creative apprenticeships, employed by the University of Lincoln, building capacity across the county by making use of the University's Apprenticeship Levy.
- Establish and grow the Greater Lincolnshire Creative Careers Network, connecting employers, education providers and emerging creative talent across the region.
- Deliver an annual programme of creative careers support, including job centre surgeries, mentoring and networking events, strengthening links between education and employers.
- Launch a Greater Lincolnshire Creative Careers Summit and Conference, bringing together industry leaders and policymakers.
- Deliver governance and board development training, helping more people develop leadership skills and supporting organisations across the county.

Energy efficiencies boost for community buildings in East Lindsey

A £162,500 investment programme managed by East Lindsey District Council to improve energy efficiency has been successfully completed.

Reduced costs and warmer, more sustainable venues are among the benefits of a decarbonisation scheme as part of Gas's social value commitment.

Funds were made available as part of upgrade works at the Hatton Gas Compressor Station, with the aim to support facilities within a 10-mile radius "to improve their energy efficiency and reduce running costs".

The initiative, led by the District Council and supported by the South & East Lincolnshire Councils Partnership, has seen interest from local organisations after being publicised online.

The improvements will help ensure community buildings remain sustainable and affordable for years to come. The project has deepened understanding of the challenges and opportunities associated with decarbonising community buildings, laying foundations for future work across East Lindsey.

Fifteen projects, across eight community buildings, were selected including village halls, a church, a school and a community centre - each playing a vital role in local communities.

Sites supported through the pilot included Gautby, Baumber, Hemingby, Minting and Wragby village halls; Helen's Church in Burgh on Bain and Horncastle Community Centre.

A wide range of energy-saving measures were installed across, from solar panels with battery storage to insulation improvements, destratification fans and heating controls.

Initiatives supported through the fund included energy efficiency upgrades to village halls and community centres, solar panels and battery storage, heating control systems, replacement of windows, to reduce energy use and heating controls to optimise energy use.

These installations were identified as the most cost-effective measures, offering the greatest reductions in energy use.

The combined impact of these measures is significant. Estimated annual savings exceed £11,000, with a reduction of more than 12 tonnes per year.

The majority of installations were carried out by Lincolnshire-based contractors, ensuring investments are local to the economy.

Energy Awareness training to staff and volunteers from participating buildings was provided by National Energy Action. East Lindsey's Horncastle Hub. This has helped equip community representatives with the knowledge to implement energy efficiency advice and signpost residents to further support.

Feedback from participants has been extremely positive. One village hall representative said: "We are very happy with the difference this all makes towards the functionality and usability of the hall," noting that the solar system now operates at "mainly cost-free" levels.

Councillors have also praised the programme for strengthening vital rural assets and helping communities reduce energy costs.

New campaign to promote dog-friendly breaks in Lincolnshire

Millions of holidaymakers and visitors will be coming to East Lindsey this summer and many will be bringing their dogs.

Dog tourism is a fast-growing industry around the world. East Lindsey District Council is commissioning a photography project to showcase dog-friendly venues along the Lincolnshire Coast and Wolds.

The campaign has been funded by the East Lindsey Investment Fund and will be launched later this year.

The team at Lincoln based production company, Electric Egg, are filming with dog owners and their pets this summer. Film director, Steve Hatton, said: "Filmmaking at the best of times is a challenge, trying to bring a story to life, it's the light or the venue or working with extras and people and volunteers. But when you add into that a dog, that can be a challenge!

"Fortunately, some of the people we have been working with own incredibly well-behaved dogs. It has been a pleasure to work with them."

The rise in Dog Tourism

Dog tourism is soaring in popularity across the globe. In January 2026, Tripadvisor released its annual Travel Trends report confirmed that bookings for dog-friendly experiences were up by 260% year on year.

The report predicts key global trends for travellers this year - informed by company insights and based on behavioural data, along with user generated content - from Tripadvisor's more than one billion reviews and the platform revealed that many travellers are now planning holidays around their pets, rather than just the destination.

East Lindsey Investment Fund and free training for tourism businesses

Tourism, events and boosting the visitor economy are one of the four key priorities for the £20m East Lindsey Investment Fund (ELIF). The scheme was launched by the district council in 2024 to improve the lives of everyone in East Lindsey.

ELIF funded free training for local tourism businesses in 2026 to help them to improve their marketing and customer service including dogs and their owners. Free in-person workshops took place in March and free online workshops are available.

The training covered topics such as effective marketing methods, using AI for tourism marketing and how to create a dog-friendly tourism market.
